

Veterans Day - November 11, 2015

Duty and honor are not just words to the men and women who serve in our military. They are a way of life engrained from the first days of training until long after their active service has ended. Often they pay a heavy price, some paying the ultimate price by putting duty, honor and family above all else to protect the freedoms we enjoy. Their active military status may change but they never stop serving. On this Veteran's Day we honor our veterans and thank them for their sacrifice for answering the call of duty, serving with honor and protecting home and family.
